—PUBLISHED BY—
JOHN P. SANBORN,
102 THAMES STREET.
NEWPORT, R. I.

THE NEWPORT MERCURY was established in June, 1858, and is now in its one hundred and thirty-sixth year. It is the oldest newspaper in the United States, with less than half a dozen exceptions, the oldest printed in the English language. It is a large quarto weekly of fifty-six columns filled with interesting reading—editorial, State, local and general news, well selected intelligence and valuable farmers' and household departments. Reading to many households in this and other States, the limited space given to advertising is very valuable to business men.

Death of James D. Horgan.

Mr. James D. Horgan, who had been suffering from a grippa for several weeks, died at his home on West Broadway yesterday morning, aged 57 years. Mr. Horgan was a native of Ireland, but came to this country in early childhood and had ever since lived in Newport where at the time of his death he was a well known and highly esteemed citizen. He was a carpenter by trade, but for twenty years had carried on the grocery and boot and shoe business on West Broadway. He was also contractor for the collection and disposal of the city house dirt, a work which, like all his other dealings, was at all times conducted conscientiously and to the entire satisfaction of all.

He leaves a widow and six children, and Mr. P. H. Horgan is his only surviving brother. He also had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances with whom his loss will be long felt and deeply regretted.

His funeral will probably be solemnized from St. Joseph's church tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. G. Everett Hill, the organist at St. George's church, gave a reception at his residence on Bliss road Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. Harry P. Girard, the new organist and choir-master at St. John's. A pleasant social evening was passed and Mr. Girard, who is a stranger in Newport, appreciated this act of kindly courtesy from his brother-musician.

Mr. Stephen M. Rounds, of Fall River, was in town Thursday with a walking stick which he made himself 37 years ago. The cane is composed of 6780 pieces of 13 different kinds of wood, put together according to a design entirely original with the maker, and is one of the handiwork of his own hands.

Mrs. J. H. Swazey is confined to the house by illness.

St. Joseph's Church.

Rev. Father Coyle, of St. Joseph's church, presented his ninth annual report of the financial condition of that parish on Sunday. The report showed that of a debt of $7000 at the beginning of the year, $5500 had been paid, leaving a balance of but $1500. This balance, he said, he attributed solely to the prevailing hard times for, had business this year been as good as in previous years, the entire $7000 would have been paid without any trouble. The financial report showed the receipts for the year to be $5,494.07 from new rents, $5,087.15 from the annual house collection, $3,811.10 from other sources for parish purposes, and $1,207.02 for diocesan and charitable purposes other than for the parish proper, making a total of $15,600.84. The expenses were $7,230.06 for the ordinary expenses of the church; $7,138.41 for the payment on debt, interest and permanent improvements; $1,227.02 for diocesan and charitable purposes; making a total of $15,600.49. His subject is that of "Inhabited Worlds," a very suggestive theme which is certain to be well handled by the reverend gentleman. Those interested will be welcome to attend, free, the audience not being restricted solely to the members of the Society. All friends will be welcome.

Golden Rod Social Club entertained the members of the Second Ward Club and invited guests at a banquet at Odd Fellows Hall Monday night. The hall was very handsomely decorated and the tables, which were set in the shape of a T, presented a very attractive and inviting appearance. The post-prandial exercises, which were under the direction of Mr. W. H. Sullivan, included vocal selections by the Golden Rod Quartette, the Second Ward Quartette, and several solos, selections on banjo, zither, piano and mandolin, recitations and a solo dance. Remarks were made by a number of those present and all were unanimous in declaring the affair a great success in every particular.

The last of the entertainments of the Y. M. C. A. course, which was to have been given Thursday evening, was postponed on account of the revival services being held in this city. The date of the entertainment will be announced later.

Unity Club Social.

The Unity Club gave a social evening last Tuesday, at which there was a large attendance of members and invited friends. The bill of fare appealed to the literary taste, the musical temperament and the gastronomic needs of humanity, as there were eloquent readings, vocal and instrumental music and refreshments. The readers were Dr. Cutter and Colonel Howard Smith, both of whom read some humorous selections with much ability, drawing down the applause of all present. Miss Grace Brazier also read, her selection being a poem of the playfully didactic type by Saxe. Mr. John O. Rogers, violinist, Mr. Mason pianist and Mrs. Cora Gosling, as vocalist filled up the musical department, along with Mrs. George Stoddard and Miss Bertha Feckham, whose duets on the piano were admirably rendered. Death of Com. Colt.

The death of Commodore Caldwell H. Colt, which took place at Puata Gorda last Sunday night, removes one of the best known and most enthusiastic yachtsmen in this country, and he will be sadly missed in club and yachting circles. Commodore Colt was especially well known here, where his yacht Dauntless often rode at anchor in the harbor and where he was always ready to contribute, both with money and interest in all the local summer sports. His funeral was solemnized on yesterday and was largely attended, delegations being present from the New York Yacht Club, of which he was a past commodore, and many other yacht and social clubs of which he was an honored member at the time of his death.

GLEANNINGS FROM HISTORY.

Presented by JAMES C. SWAN.

Simon the Just

Simon the high priest, the son of Onias, who in his life had been a saint again and in his days fortified the temple. And by him was built from the foundation the double height, the high fortress of the wall about the temple. In his days the cistern to receive water being in compass as the sea, was covered with plates of brass. He took care of the temple that it should not fall, and fortified the city against besieging. How was he honored in the midst of the people, in his coming out of the sanctuary! He was as the morning star in the midst of a cloud, and as the moon at the full: As the sun shining upon the temple of the most High, and as the rainbow giving light in the bright clouds: And as the flower of roses in the spring of the year, as the lilies by the rivers of waters, and as the branches of frankincense tree in the month of summer: As fire and incense in the altar, and as a vessel of beaten gold set with all manner of precious stones: And as a fair olive tree budding forth fruit, and as an acorn tree which groweth up to the clouds. When he put on the robe of honor, and was clothed with the perfection of glory, when he went up to the holy altar, he made the garment of holiness honorable. When he took the portions out of the face of the altar, he himself stood by the hearth of the altar, compassed with his brethren round about, as a young cedar in Libanus; and as palm trees compassed they him round about. So were all the sons of Aaron in their glory, and oblations of the Lord in their hands, before all the congregation of Israel. And finishing the service at the altar, that he might adorn the offering of the most High Almighty, he stretched out his hand to the cup, and poured out the blood of the grapes, he poured out at the foot of the altar a sweet smelling savor unto the most High King of all. Then shouted the sons of Aaron, and sounded the silver trumpets, and made a great noise to be heard, for a remembrance before the most High. Then all the people together shouted, and fell down on the earth, praising the face of their Lord God Almighty, the most High. The singers also sang praises with their voices; with great variety of sounds was there made sweet melody. And the people besought the Lord, the most High, by prayer before him that is merciful, till the solemnity of the Lord was ended, and they had finished his service. Then he went down, and lifted up his hands over the whole congregation of the children of Israel, to give the blessing of the Lord with his lips, and to rejoice in his name. And they bowed themselves down to worship the second time, that they might receive a blessing from the most High.

Now, therefore, bless ye the God of all, which only doeth wondrous things everywhere, which stretcheth out his hand from the womb, and doeth with us according to his mercy.

Eleazer the High Priest's answer to the King.

When the epistle of the king was brought to Eleazer, he wrote an answer to it with all the respect possible. "Eleazer the high priest to King Ptolemy, sendeth greeting: If thou and thy queen Arinote, and thy children be well, we are entirely satisfied. When we received thy epistle, we were greatly rejoiced at thy intention; and when the messenger of the letter came to us, we read it to them, and thereby made them sensible of the piety thou hast towards God. We also showed them the twenty vessels of gold, and thirty of silver, and the five large basins, and the table for the show bread, as also the hundred talents for the sacrifices, and for making what is beneficial in the temple. Which things Andrian and Aristaeus, these most honored friends of mine, have brought up; and truly they are persons of an excellent character, and of great learning, and worthy of thy virtue. Know then that we will gratify thee in what is for thy advantage, though we do what we used not to do before; for we ought to make a return for the numerous acts of kindness which thou hast done to our countrymen. We immediately, therefore, of our own volition, have valued at a price with thy children and friends; and the multitude made prayer, that thy affairs may be to thy mind, and that thy kingdom may be preserved in peace, and that the translation of our law may come to the conclusion thou desirest, and be for thy advantage. We have also chosen six elders out of every tribe, whom we have sent, and the law of the Lord will be the part of each of thy piety and justice, to read back the law, when it hath been translated, and to return those to us that bring it in safely. Farewell!"

The above was the reply which the high priest made, and the names of the twenty-two elders sent by Eleazer, and who carried the law, were subjoined at the end of the epistle. However, it was not thought improper to give an account of the forty valuable articles, artificially contrived vessels which the king sent to God, that all may see how great a regard the king had for God; for the king allowed a vast deal of expenses for these vessels, and came often to the workmen, and viewed their works, and suffered nothing of carelessness or negligence to be any damage to their operations.

It was indeed in the king's mind to make this table vastly large in its dimensions; but when he gave order that they should learn what was the magnitude of the table which was already at Jerusalem, and how large it was, and whether there was a possibility of making one larger than it. And when he was informed how large that was which was already there, and that nothing hindered but a larger might be made, he said that "he was willing to have one made that should be five times as large as the present table, but his fear was, that it might be then useless in their sacred ministrations, by its too great largeness; for he desired that the gifts he presented them should not only be there for show, but should be useful also in their sacred ministrations." According to which reasoning, that the former table was made of moderate size for use, and not for want of gold, he resolved that he would not exceed the former table in largeness, but would make it exceed it in the variety and elegance of its materials. And as he was sagacious in observing the nature of all things, and in having a just notion of what was new and surprising, and where there were no sculptures he would invent such as was proper, by his own skill, and would show them to the workmen; he commanded that such sculptures should now be made, and that those which were delineated should be most accurately formed, by a constant regard to their delineation.

Woman's Dep't.

A Review of the Year.

Some newspapers have lately declared that the woman suffrage movement is "advancing backward," and that there is less interest in the question now than there was forty years ago. Forty years ago, women had school suffrage in only a single State, Kentucky. Today they have school suf-franchise in twenty-one States, municipal suffrage in Kansas, and full suffrage in Wyoming and Colorado.

Forty years ago the woman suffrage

question was not before a single State Legislature. Look at the legislative votes of the past year:

The Colorado House voted 30 to 21

and the Senate concurred in favor of enacting a statute granting full suffrage

to women, and it was carried by popular vote by 6,347 majority. The Kansas

House voted 41 to 17 and the Senate 32

to 5 in favor of submitting a similar amendment, which is now pending. In Arizona, a full suffrage bill passed the House 17 to 6, and was lost by 2 votes in the Senate. In Maine, a municipal suffrage bill passed the Senate 10 to 13,

and was defeated in the House by 9

votes. A full suffrage amendment passed the Minnesota Senate 31 to 19.

It came up in the House yesterday, but it could only be passed by suspending the rules. The House voted 43 to 14 to suspend the rules in its favor, but failed to do so for want of the necessary

two-thirds. In North Dakota, a full suffrage amendment passed the Senate

20 to 9, and the House 33 to 22, but was afterwards reconsidered in the House and lost. In Illinois, a bill to repeal school suffrage failed, no vote being recorded; and a bill to extend township suffrage to women passed the Senate 37 to 11, and failed by a majority in the House. In Michigan, a municipal suffrage bill passed

the House 57 to 25, and the Senate 18

to 11, and was signed by the governor. It was not so in the Supreme Court as unconstitutional. In California, a school suffrage bill passed the Senate

31 to 8, and the House 42 to 27, but was rejected by the governor. In New Mexico, a full suffrage bill passed the House

by a large majority, but did not reach a vote in the Senate. In Nebraska, full suffrage was defeated in the House

by the close vote of 40 to 42, and a municipal suffrage passed the House 15

to 50, and was indefinitely postponed in the Senate, 17 to 15. In the Massachusetts House of Representatives, municipal suffrage was defeated by 9 votes,

the smallest majority against it in any previous year having been 49.

In Arkansas, school suffrage passed the Senate, but was laid on the table in the House. In New York, a bill on-erating women's vote for county school commissioner passed both branches. A school suffrage bill passed both branches of the Connecticut Legislature by a large majority, was signed by the governor, and is now law. In Nova Scotia, full suffrage was lost by 3 votes. In New Zealand, full woman suffrage was carried, signed by the governor and is now the law. In the British House of Commons, suffrage was extended to all women, but was rejected in the House of Lords. In the United States, the Parish Councils Bill, against the opposition of the government, by a vote of 141 to 126. In Vermont, where, in It's Good Enough.

"Then I guess that will do," said John, as he took a shovelful of ashes out of the stove. "The parson said, 'It's good enough; nobody will say a word about it.' I can finish the story in about five minutes. I can finish the story in about five minutes. I can finish the story in about five minutes."

The store was swept very much as the stove had been cleaned. The open spaces presented a good appearance, but out of the way corners and under benches and barrels told a different story. However, John said it was good enough. The story was finished, and the paper hidden out of sight before the clerk arrived. Then Mr. Willis, the proprietor, came in, bade them a "good morning," glanced around the store and went into his private office. Presently he called John.

"Take those letters to the post office some time," he said. "They will be just in time for the nine o'clock mail. Come right back."

John hurried to the postoffice as he had been bidden, but having deposited the letters safely, saw no reason for haste. Indeed, he indulged even in a game of marbles before returning to his work. When he entered the store again, Mr. Willis made no comment on his tardiness, but remarked: "Well, John, I've almost learned my lesson."

John started. "What lesson, sir?" "The one you've been teaching me lately."

John was more puzzled than ever, and all day long he wondered what lesson he could possibly teach Mr. Willis. The next morning John's work was done as speedily and no better than the day before. Mr. Willis came before the clerk, and sent John out on an errand. While he was gone, that gentleman, with a quiet smile, began to investigate the corner that John thought nobody would see. When he returned, Mr. Willis said: "John, I told you yesterday that I had almost learned my lesson. Today I know it thoroughly. Would you like to hear it?"

"You are," said John, "teaching me how well I could get along without you. I thought the stove needed cleaning and the store sweeping every morning, but it seems you don't; so I shall not need you any longer than this week."

The parson's proposition.

There was a Napoleon of finance who formerly speculated in Chicago and afterwards picked out a promising town in Iowa and decided "to build it up." He moved to the town, organized a number of stock companies, started a bank, and then went into bankruptcy. Some of the principal sufferers went to his house to learn whether anything could be saved from the wreck. They found him in a magnificent apartment, and he was very sorry for them.

"I regret very much, gentlemen," said he, "but I have practically nothing left. My wife owns this house and some business property, but I have nothing. Believe me, if I could do such a thing, I would give you my body and let it be divided among you, for there is nothing else I can give."

"What's that proposition?" asked a rather deaf old gentleman who was standing at the back of the mournful company.

"He says," explained one of the sufferers, "that we can take his body and divide it among us."

"Well, in that case," said the deaf old gentleman, "I speak for his gall."

God's Covenant with Noah.

Gen. 9:1-17.

Lesson Introduction.

The murder of Abel properly occurred at 125 years after the creation of Adam, though the early Bible dates are rather problematical. Says Prof. Willis J. Beecher: "Our marginal Bibles date the creation B. C. 4004, the birth of Cain the following year, and the murder a hundred and twenty-eight years later. It should be understood that this is a general statement, and not a precise one. The Bible dates are given by the number of years from the birth of Adam to the birth of Noah. The Bible dates are given by the number of years from the birth of Adam to the birth of Noah. The Bible dates are given by the number of years from the birth of Adam to the birth of Noah."

At the end of the year the waters had dried up. Noah and his family were to be dispersed from the ark which rested on the mountain of Ararat, far north of the original habitation of man. As the family began to make a new home they would naturally fear that the earth would become corrupt again and that it would meet a repetition of the recent punishment. To quiet their fears God gave them two gifts of love, "the rainbow and the death penalty."

And God spoke unto Noah, and said unto him: Thou art righteous, and perfect in thy generation, and I have found thee just, and blameless, and perfect in thy generation. And I will establish my covenant with thee, and with thy sons after thee, and with every beast that is with thee, and with every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and with every beast that is with thee, and with every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth."

Established: This word commonly denotes not the original making of a covenant, but the subsequent recognition of it as being in effect. God's transaction with Noah seems to be a recognition of the fact that he was already in covenant with men. Covenant: This is one of the important words of the Bible. It occurs for the first time here and the mention of this same transaction in Gen. 15:1. This earliest recorded covenant is important not merely in itself, but as a type of God's covenant dealings with men. Later in the Bible the Scriptures of the Old and New Covenants are mentioned. The Scriptures of the Old and New Covenants are mentioned. The Scriptures of the Old and New Covenants are mentioned.

And God spoke unto Noah, and said unto him: Thou art righteous, and perfect in thy generation, and I have found thee just, and blameless, and perfect in thy generation. The murder of Abel properly occurred at 125 years after the creation of Adam, though the early Bible dates are rather problematical. Says Prof. Willis J. Beecher: "Our marginal Bibles date the creation B. C. 4004, the birth of Cain the following year, and the murder a hundred and twenty-eight years later. It should be understood that this is a general statement, and not a precise one. The Bible dates are given by the number of years from the birth of Adam to the birth of Noah. The Bible dates are given by the number of years from the birth of Adam to the birth of Noah. The Bible dates are given by the number of years from the birth of Adam to the birth of Noah."

At the end of the year the waters had dried up. Noah and his family were to be dispersed from the ark which rested on the mountain of Ararat, far north of the original habitation of man. As the family began to make a new home they would naturally fear that the earth would become corrupt again and that it would meet a repetition of the recent punishment. To quiet their fears God gave them two gifts of love, "the rainbow and the death penalty."

And God spoke unto Noah, and said unto him: Thou art righteous, and perfect in thy generation, and I have found thee just, and blameless, and perfect in thy generation. And I will establish my covenant with thee, and with thy sons after thee, and with every beast that is with thee, and with every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and with every beast that is with thee, and with every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth."

Established: This word commonly denotes not the original making of a covenant, but the subsequent recognition of it as being in effect. God's transaction with Noah seems to be a recognition of the fact that he was already in covenant with men. Covenant: This is one of the important words of the Bible. It occurs for the first time here and the mention of this same transaction in Gen. 15:1. This earliest recorded covenant is important not merely in itself, but as a type of God's covenant dealings with men. Later in the Bible the Scriptures of the Old and New Covenants are mentioned. The Scriptures of the Old and New Covenants are mentioned. The Scriptures of the Old and New Covenants are mentioned.
